Welcome to Motts Run Reservoir

Welcome to the woods and waters of Motts Run Reservoir. This 860-acre park was opened in 1974, three years after completion of the reservoir, and since that time has seen many changes. In 2000 a water treatment facility was completed near the dam to serve the City of Fredericksburg and parts of Spotsylvania Co., and in 2004 our lovely log cabin nature center was completed. Motts Run continues to provide recreational opportunities for fishermen and boaters, as well as habitat for waterfowl and a host of other wildlife. Over 4.5 miles of hiking trails, in turn, encourage exploration of the surrounding forest.

Wildlife

Wetland vegetation rimming the 6.5 mile shoreline provides a breeding ground for spring peepers and American toads, dragonflies and mayflies, which in turn become food for bluegill and bass. Great blue herons, kingfisher and osprey prey on the aquatic life while beavers make use of the sweetgum, oak, and pine growing along the banks, for their numerous stick and mud bank lodges. Further upland, the hardwood forest of oak, hickory and beech provides food and shelter for white-tailed deer, wild turkey, raccoon, and the great-horned owl. Flowering mountain laurel and dogwood brighten the spring woodland while black gum and red maple set the autumn woods on fire. Enjoy your visit to this wilderness in reach of town!

Orienteering Course

Challenge yourself with map and compass! A series of possible routes through the woods to orange-topped posts makes for great family fun. Info @ Nature Center or www.fredericksburgva.gov (Parks&Rec / Parks / Motts Run Nature Center/)
